Tax identification number for foreign citizens

Tax identification number for foreign citizens

In order to sign any kind of employment contract, rent a house, open a bank account, you need a codice fiscale (tax code).

The codice fiscale (tax code) is an alphanumeric code for residents on Italian territory.

Normally this code is assigned when you arrive in Italy and you ask for it at the Agenzia delle Entrate.

With the same document, on the back, you get the health card that Italian citizens need for all health services.

For citizens coming from an EU country, it guarantees urgent health services.

The registration with the National Health Service, which entitles you to have the health card, is free of charge.

For further information consult the official website of the Ministry of Health.

How to apply for a tax identification number in Italy

Non EU citizens can obtain the tax identification number either at the Single desk for immigration “Sportelli Unici per l’immigrazione” or by any Police headquarters “Questure”.

The Single desk for immigration issues the tax identification number to citizens who apply for entry into the Country either for employment purposes or for reunite with their family. Police headquarters assign the tax identification number to foreign nationals who require either the issuance or the renewal of a residence permit.

In any other situation, the tax identification number can be obtained from the offices of the Italian Revenue Agency, by submitting a request indicating the personal data and the residence for tax purposes where the card should be delivered.
