SPID, the Public Digital Identity System

SPID, the Public Digital Identity System

- SPID, the Public Digital Identity System, is the solution that allows you to access the online services of the Public Administration and participating private entities with a single Digital Identity (username and password) that can be used from computers, tablets and smartphones.
- The use of the SPID is free.
- Requesting SPID is also free, but if you decide to do so with recognition via webcam, operators may require payment for this additional service.

SPID, the Public Digital Identity System

- Spid, or the Public Digital Identity System, is the identification method and is used to access what are the online services, managed by the Public Administration and by private individuals who have chosen to join the circuit. It can be used to access many portals, without having to make specific registrations.
- SPID also allows access to the public services of the member states of the European Union and of companies or traders who have chosen it as an identification tool.

SPID, the Public Digital Identity System

- Through the use of Spid, however, it is not only possible to simply log in to the portals of the PA or private members, but also to directly access the many services that previously would have required special device pins or, in some cases, the physical presence of the applicant at the reference office for filling out forms and forwarding the necessary applications.
- With Spid, the process becomes faster and more effective, since the key consisting of username and password can also be used on the move, from home or any other place covered by a web connection, directly from a computer, smartphone or tablet.
